face craft is being conducted. Some thirty vessels circled the islands, their lookouts closely scanning the waves for small objects that might be planes tossed in the swell of the Pacific.

Up toward the great circle dashed the airplane carrier Langley and the destroyer of the Navy, dispatched from San Diego, with dozens of airplanes, prepared to take off in mid-Pacific to search. On the decks of the Langley are more than thirty planes, the Arctostok carries two.

ARMY LENDS HELP

The Army eagerly took up the search. Two planes sprang into the air from Crissy Field at San Francisco, four of them equipped with radio to bring aid should the pilots sight the missing planes. Four of the Army's machines struck straight out to sea, flying beyond the Farallones. The others flew along the coast, it being thought possible that disaster might have occurred soon after the Dole race plane passed the Golden Gate to soar above the open Pacific.

Arthur Goebel, pilot of the winning plane, Woolaro, and Martin Jensen, who drove the Aloha to win second place, more concerned for the safety of the other contestants than for their own victory, announced plans to fly their machines in the search.

Goebel said that he and his navigator, Lieut. W. V. Davis of the Navy, will take off in the Woolaro as soon as they can put her into the air and will fly the machines 100 miles in every direction from Wheeler Field in the endeavor to locate the Golden Eagle and the Miss Doran. The Woolaro was ordered refueled hastily, and Goebel departed with Davis for the sea.

READY FOR SEARCH

Jensen and Schuster both prepared to join the search with their plane, the Aloha, and army fliers turned their machines to search and aid.

A report, unverified, that an object resembling a plane had been seen floating eight miles off Honolulu, Island of Hawaii, caused the navy station at Pearl Harbor to dispatch vessels to investigate. They were actuated by the intention to neglect no clue, however insignificant, that might lead to the rescue of the missing flyers.

From the neighboring Island of Molokai came the report that opinion is unanimous among residents that the missing planes could not have landed on that island without being observed. Lookouts had kept constant vigil from early Wednesday, but had sighted neither plane, although visibility was pronounced perfect.

SAMPANS SENT OUT

The Kukui, at present on a construction trip around the Hawaiian Islands, was off the north coast of Lanai this morning, and was ordered to search the coast of Molokai Island later in the day. The ship carries wireless.

One hundred and twenty sampans—Japanese fishing craft—belonging to members of the Japanese fishermen's association, were ordered out from Oahu Island to aid in the search for pilots Proctor and Pedlar, and the Commander, one of them Miss Mildred Doran.

Large numbers of sampans are expected to operate from other islands also to supplement naval and civilian efforts.

Unhappily, even filled with tears, his trembling hands revealing his anxiety, William P. Mallouk, backer of the Miss Doran plane, still declared his belief that the plane and its crew may be found momentarily. In husky voice, he said:

"I tell you it makes a man feel queer, this thing does. Yesterday just knowing you would see the plane come in with the rest—and now—He paused.

"There is just one thing that could have happened to prevent them from being picked up some place," Mallouk resumed. "That is, if the plane caught fire."

HOPE STILL FELT

"Yes, they carried fire extinguishers. But if that had happened someone would have seen the plane burning at sea. We would have heard of it, so we can go on waiting hopefully."

Mallouk asserted his belief that the crew is afloat at sea, admitting that the plane's gasoline must be exhausted. He declined to hazard a guess whether the crew will be found nearer to the islands or the mainland, saying that, either is possible.

"That boat can't sink," he declared with emphasis. "It can float forever. The plane was especially designed for such an emergency."

"Miss Doran was making sandwiches the night before she left on the plane," he said. "Of course, they had food, but I do not know how much. I don't like to think about their being exposed for a long time. I hope it won't be necessary."

"Yes, Miss Doran could stand the ordeal," he added. "She is a regular little iron woman, strong and a hard worker."

Re-entering the field of speculation, Mallouk said:

"I am still waiting; they may be on one of these islands. I think we shall pick them up. I have every faith in Pedlar and Knoppe. They might have been picked up by a boat that had no radio."

DIRECTIONS SENT TO SEARCHING CRAFT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18. (AP)—As airplanes returned to their mother ships and land bargains tonight, destroyers, submarines and merchant vessels carried on the search for the lost Dole flyers. One woman and four men. Somewhere out in the Pacific, either between the mainland and the Hawaiian Islands, or off the western shores of Hawaii, two airplanes entered the $25,000 James D. The Miss Doran was not built to float for any great length of time. The crew would have to take to its life raft immediately after a forced landing and there is a possibility that the water landing was not made successfully.

Every available agency on the Pacific coast, for the search today and as night fell sixty-two naval and merchant ships were swinging into the great circle steamer and land between San Francisco and Honolulu to seek the missing planes.

At the Oakland municipal airport two airmen urged government officials for approval of their desire to join the hunt. Capt. William Erwin, pilot of the Dallas Spirit, installed a radio set aboard his plane and said he will start out for Honolulu early in the morning, working in conjunction with the Navy.

MANY PLANES OUT

C. W. Parkhurst, pilot of the Air King, wanted to fly several miles out to sea today but was urged by naval officials to abandon the idea because his plane is not radio equipped and thus could be of little aid to the searching vessels.

From Crissy Field in San Francisco an average of four planes left hourly during the day to cover a radius of 200 miles offshore and reported back to headquarters by radio every five minutes, always negatively.

GOING AGAIN TODAY

The planes labored under difficulties, weathering said, as the visibility was only about ten miles. Each plane was given a name to comb thoroughly.

The army planes will start out over the coast at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning to continue the search.

side of the Hawaiian Islands, backer of the plane declared here today. George Hearst, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, who entered the plane, A. M. Roehlin, flight manager, and W. K. Jay, secretary of the Lockheed Aircraft Company of Los Angeles, were unanimous in the opinion that the Golden Eagle, traveling at a cruising speed of 114 miles an hour, sped over the islands during the night without seeing land or aware that the goal had been reached.

Less concern was felt over the safety of the metal-sealed Golden Eagle than for the biplane, Miss Doran, carrying its namesake, the school-teacher, and her companions.

DORAN FAMILY ANXIETY GROWS

Brother of Lost Teacher Watches Bulletins

Two Aunts Appear to Have Given Up All Hope

Confidence in Pilot Pedlar Universally Felt

FLINT (Mich.) Aug. 18. (AP)—The anxiety of the many friends and relatives of Miss Mildred Doran, a passenger on one of the two airplanes missing somewhere in the Pacific Ocean, increased as news dispatches reaching here failed to contain the words they hoped to read.

William Doran, Jr., oldest brother of Miss Doran, continued his vigil at a local newspaper office, still hopeful that his sister will be found alive.

The optimistic statement of Herbert Hughes, manager of the Buell Aircraft Company, Marysville, maker of the Miss Doran plane, that the large gasoline tank when empty would support the plane gave new hope to the anxious relatives.

FATHER ON FARM

The father, William Doran, Sr., stoically continued his work on his farm near here, with only the terse statement, "I want to forget it all until some definite information is received."

CONFIDENCE IN ABILITY OF "AUGIE"

Pedlar appeared universal among relatives and those who have discussed the flight almost continually since the take-off.

Typical of the confidence felt by many was the statement in Carl Mich, of one small schoolboy, a former pupil of Miss Doran: "Ah, she's all right," the boy said, "she'll snap out of it all right. I know her."

Insistent demands upon her guardian, William Mallouk, a wealthy Flint oil man, against the release of the plane Miss Doran, von Miss Doran her place in the cabin of the plane.

WAS TELEPHONE GIRL

Let motherhood several years ago, Miss Doran kept house for her father and brother here while attending a Flint high school. After graduation in 1924 she worked night in a local telephone exchange to obtain money to attend college. Graduation from Tiplant State Normal School and a position as fifth-grade teacher at Caro followed.

Later becoming a member of Mallouk's, Miss Doran became interested in aviation about the time Mallouk, always an enthusiastic sportsman, conceived a Flint-to-Honolulu flight. Consistent with the plan, Miss Doran was begun. Meaningful, she broadened the proposition of being one of the passengers.

Friends recalled today that Mallouk, at first reluctant to give his permission, finally yielded to Miss Doran's request.

A confidence, inspired by several years' acquaintance with the Doran family, ruled Mallouk in granting his permission. He believed that the plane, which he had built, was a member of the plane's crew, and that it would be able to find its way through the flight just like a bird.

PILOT CHOSEN BY FLIP

Preparations for beginning the flight then went forward after August 17, 1927, when the plane was taken to the airport at Long Beach, Cal., had been chosen for pilot by flipping a coin with Eyre Slinger, another Flint pilot.

The coin fell heads, and the choice in Miss Doran's practical preparation for the flight. Asked, soon after the plane was taken to the airport, how she felt about the flight, she replied: "I feel that I have all the confidence in the world in my plane. I will go through the flight just like a bird."

Friends recalled that just before departing for San Francisco, Miss Doran said: "I feel that I will win, but if I don't, well, life is just a game of chance anyway."

GOLDEN EAGLE INQUIRY ASKED

The gasoline capacity of all the ships was figured on the basis of thirteen gallons an hour and a cruising speed of ninety miles an hour.

"Under the rules of 18 per cent safety margin, the Golden Eagle should have carried 297 gallons of gasoline," Kelly and Lacroix said in their report to the Golden Eagle inquiry. "It was upon this basis that the entry, City of Peoria, was disqualified, carrying eighteen gallons more than the Golden Eagle."

In answer to the charges George Hearst, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, who entered the Golden Eagle, A. M. Roehlin, flight manager, and W. K. Jay, treasurer of the Lockheed Aircraft Company of Los Angeles, builders of the plane, declared emphatically that in ratio to the cruising speed and area, the Golden Eagle carried in excess of the 18 per cent safety margin.

The three men agreed on one answer to why the Golden Eagle was missing. It was that the plane sped so fast toward the islands that the goal was reached during the hours of darkness and not realizing the strength of tail winds not registered by the air speed meter the two men, Fred and Gordon Scott, navigator, flew over the islands until forced down on the western side of Hawaii when their gasoline supply was exhausted.

Hearst and Jay expressed the opinion that the two planes were found floating about west of the Hawaiian Islands.

The financial year of the State of New South Wales closed with a surplus of $7,500,000, the greatest since the year of federation.

HONOLULU, Aug. 18. (AP)—Goebel, pilot of the winning plane Woolaro, said that his flight to Hawaii states universal opinion that early development of aviation between Hawaii and the mainland.

"The Army radio service for this year is a great improvement," Goebel said. "It is quite true we have about two hours in the air, but we were easily able to maintain our position and, sure enough, we again and again saw the mainland with signals coming in."

MISS DORAN LAUGHED AT IDEA SHE FEARED TO ESSAY FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18. (AP)—Mildred Doran was not afraid. She laughed at those who questioned her intentions of accompanying "Auggie" Pedlar and Lieut. Vilas R. Knoppe over the Pacific to Hawaii in the Dole race.

"Don't let them go without me," Miss Doran cried Tuesday as she started out of a tent on the Oakland airport and ran toward the Pedlar plane at the starting line. It had come down after the first take-off because of engine trouble. Many in the crowd thought it came back because Miss Doran was afraid and that she would not climb back into the plane when it was ready to start again. But she did.

Even when some one asked "What are your last words?" Miss Doran was not afraid. A man might have quivered at the suggestion conveyed by the question. Miss Doran merely laughed, threw back her head, laughed again and was gone without answering.

Goebel Predicts Commercial Service at Early Date
Flyer Says Own Feet Steadily Feasibility of Plan
Declares Army Radio Bureau Proved Importance

HONOLULU, Aug. 18. (AP)—Goebel, pilot of the "Dole" flying plane, predicted today that his flight to Honolulu would be the first of many, and that the Hawaiian Islands would be the first to have a regular commercial service.

"The Army radio bureau has proved the feasibility of the plan," he said. "I am sure that the Hawaiian Islands will be the first to have a regular commercial service."

Goebel, who is a member of the Hawaiian Islands Flying Club, said that he had been flying over the islands for several months, and that he had found the route to be very feasible.

ONE OF THOSE HOT SERMONS

Parishioner Sits in Car, Goes to Sleep and Blows Horn With Head

MADILL (Okla.), Aug. 17. (AP)—A Madill churchgoer drew his car up to the church window on a recent warm Sunday morning and settled comfortably in the cushions to listen to the sermon.

The sermon closed and the pastor began to pray, when a long insistent blare of an auto horn cut him short. A deacon, dispatched to end the din, found his brother member asleep across the steering wheel, his head resting on the horn button.

RULING TODAY IN SACCO CASE

Decision of Supreme Court in Clerk's Hands

Federal Bench Appeal Next if Against Pair

Vanzetti Found Cheerful on Eve of Decree

BOSTON, Aug. 18. (AP)—The decision of the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court on a petition for a writ of error in the Sacco-Vanzetti case and on exceptions taken by defense counsel to rulings of Justice George A. Sutherland of the Supreme Court and Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior Court will be made public tomorrow morning.

The four justices constituting the full bench in this instance completed the writing of their decision today and delivered it to the official recorder of Supreme Court decisions. The recorder told the newspaper men who had thought the document might be made public today that he will not give it out until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. He added that the decision covers about five typewritten pages.

PLAN HIGHER APPEAL
Arguments on the exceptions by Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel, and Attorney General. Reading were made on Tuesday by Justices Henry K. Braley, presiding; Edward P. Pierce, James B. Carroll and William C. Wait. The exceptions were to Justice Sutherland's refusal of a writ of error and to Judge Thayer's refusal of a new trial, a revocation of sentence and a stay of execution. At the close of the arguments defense counsel petitioned the full bench for a writ of error.

Should the decision be adverse to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, whose respite from execution for murder expires at midnight on the 22nd inst., defense counsel have indicated that they will begin action in the United States Supreme Court. Their plan is to file a petition for a writ of certiorari with the clerk of the Supreme Court at Washington.

Michael A. Musanov, Pittsburgh attorney associated with the defense, said today that he will take this petition to Washington. At the same time it was considered probable that defense counsel would ask Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, who is at his home in Beverly, for a stay of execution.

VANZETTI CHEERFUL
Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, State prison physician, on his daily visit to the prisoners today found Vanzetti in a cheerful mood and, as he said, "feeling fine." Sacco said he was not feeling very well.

"Doctor," he remarked, "you are giving me too much to eat." "Well," replied the physician, "you don't have to eat all that is sent you. Eat only what you want."

Dr. McLaughlin said that Sacco probably had eaten too heartily after ending his prolonged hunger strike and that this had affected his digestion. Warden William Henry said there was no trouble with the men.

But it would be a national humiliation, a shameful, cowardly compromise of national courage, to pay the slightest attention to foreign protests or mob protests at home against the Sacco-Vanzetti execution.

Senator Borah's telegram said: "Your telegram asking me as chairman to point out to the Governor of Massachusetts the very serious consequences of the execution of Sacco-Vanzetti received. Dear Miss Addams, the fight for Sacco-Vanzetti can properly be based on innocence or unfair trial and that alone. In the testing of that question I would gladly help in so far as I could."

The telegram was sent to Miss Addams at Bar Harbor, Me. Finland's government railways made a net profit of $3,630,000 in a recent year.

BROKEN AUTOS LURE THIEVES

Gangs Disguised as Repair Crews Whisk Machines Away in France

PARIS, Aug. 18. (AP)—Police report that broken-down motors are whisked away by thieves disguised as repair men before the legitimate wrecking crews can get to them.

The thieves are believed to have a garage and to receive much of their information as to the location of broken-down cars from accomplices working with bona fide repair gangs.

President to President Coolidge asking for clemency for Celestino Maldonado, under death sentence for murder and one of the witnesses in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, be transmitted to Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts.

He was assured by department officials that this already had been done. The Portuguese President based his request upon the fact that Portuguese law does not permit death sentences and that, therefore, he fears a very bad impression may be caused in Portugal if Maldonado is executed.

CANADIAN UNION FLEED FOR CLEMENCY
OTTAWA (Ont.) Aug. 18. (AP)—Protesters against the action of "an obviously biased judge and unscrupulous legal machinery," the All Canadian Congress of Labor today sent a protest to President Coolidge urging that he prevent electrocution of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts.

GERMANS IN FIGHT OVER SENDING PROTEST
HINDENBURG, UPPER SILESLIA (Germany) Aug. 18. (AP)—An uproar in the Municipal Council here over a Communist proposal to cable President Coolidge a protest in the Sacco-Vanzetti case ended last night in a fist fight, in which a Nationalist member was knocked out by a Communist. The latter refused to obey the chairman's order to leave the Council room, and the session was suspended.

BORAH OPPOSES GIVING EAR TO FOREIGN PROTESTS
SPOKANE (Wash.) Aug. 18.—Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the United States Senate, tonight telegraphed Miss Jane Addams, internationally known social worker, that "it would be a national humiliation, a shameful, cowardly compromise of national courage, to pay the slightest attention to foreign protests or mob protests at home against the Sacco-Vanzetti execution."

WILD COLLEGE TALES DENIED

Young Prohibitionists Say Drinking Exaggerated

Thirst for Adventure Held to be Main Incentive

Future Generations Pictured as Without Liquor

WINONA LAKE (Ind.) Aug. 18. (AP)—Conditions in colleges and universities are not nearly so bad as they have been pictured, it was declared by speakers at the young people's rally conducted by the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association in session here today. This was a preliminary meeting to the congress of the World League Against Alcoholism, which formally opened tonight.

Veteran prohibitionists who are officers in the association and student workers in the dry cause asserted that the great body of American students is dry but it is grossly misrepresented in the public press by the activities and misconduct of a few.

Many students drink for the sake of adventure, declared George Douglas, student secretary of the organization. The desire to try a forbidden article, to learn what caused its banishment, to be able to get it from a bootlegger; the dare of "putting it across" against the ban of the law, is great sport for some students, the speaker explained. However little or much this may be, he said, it stands out vividly in the absence of the more serious conditions of the pre-prohibition period.

The remedy for present-day conditions in the colleges, it was pointed out, is through education in prohibition and plans have been perfected for inauguration of such a program.

Posterity ultimately shall live in a world as intolerant of intoxicating beverages as of the white slave traffic. Lofton S. Wesley, another student secretary said.

Enough people to establish a real city rode on this famous train during the month of July. They saw California's beautiful coast valleys, and mountain ranges. They experienced the thrill of speeding for 113 miles along the seashore over the line between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

More than 20,000 in a month—an amazing testimonial to the Daylight's growing popularity. Its 12-hour, non-stop run (7:45 a.m. to 7:45 p.m.) is unique in railroading. Only in this way could so many see so much of California's most fascinating sections in such short time.

BANDITS SHOOT WAY FROM JAIL

Two Murderers Escape in Pittsburgh Dash
Guards Shot as Convicts Rush for Doors
Weapons Smuggled in by Unidentified Man

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 18. (AP)—Two convicted murderers, one a notorious gangster and pay-roll bandit, shot their way to freedom this afternoon in one of the boldest dashes for liberty in the history of the Allegheny County Jail.

In their wake, as they dashed from the prison in the downtown section of Pittsburgh, their guns roaring, they left two wounded guards and endangered many pedestrians. They were aided in their bid for freedom by a two-gun man who supplied the convicts with pistols. The two escapees were Paul Jaworski, a well-known figure in the "flathead mob," notorious mine pay-roll hold-up gang, and John Vashinder, convicted of having murdered a man when his request for a quarter was refused. Both were awaiting execution in the electric chair.

GUNS GIVEN PAIR

Early in the afternoon an unidentified visitor called on Jaworski. As they talked, separated by an iron grill, Vashinder stood near by. Suddenly the visitor, a two-gun man, drew pistols and covered the prison guards and guards. He tossed guns to Vashinder and Jaworski. The latter immediately opened fire, wounding John Hamilton and Harry Rieger, guards. Each was shot in the arm.

Then began the sensational dash for the main door leading to Ross street, facing the Allegheny County Courthouse. Their guns barked as they advanced to the last barrier.

Coming to the main gate they met a woman visitor. She was brushed aside and as the convicts' guns roared in the direction of the door guard the woman fainted. Other guards, attracted by the shooting, rushed for the gate. By the time they arrived Jaworski had opened the iron-barred door with keys taken from a book-keeper and was outside. As they reached the street their accomplice, a gun in each hand, continued firing to cover the retreat.

ESCAPE IN AUTO

The shooting continued until the convicts and their companion rounded a corner, boarded an automobile and disappeared.

Jaworski, said by police to be wanted in Detroit for the slaying of a policeman, was arrested shortly after the Coverdale robbery a few months ago when $102,000 was stolen after the bandits blew up an armored car with a mine planted under the high-

BALLOON ONCE TRIED SEA HOP

Gas Bag Back in 1886 Came Down Near Shore After Rising Five Miles

BRIDGEPORT (Ct.) Aug. 18. (AP)—Thumbing the pages of local history, Bridgeport has found that the first attempt at trans-Atlantic aerial voyaging originated here in 1886, when the balloon Bridgeport set out from here for Paris.

The trip was not complete. The Bridgeport got only as far as six miles from Bridgeport, near the southern shore of Long Island, where it alighted with its crew of five, little the worse for their hazardous adventure.

Their projected trip was obviously hopeless. Their motive power was to have been the winds, which, they hoped, would wait them across the 3500 miles of ocean. In their short trip the balloon ascended to a height of 28,000 feet, or nearly five miles, which was for some time an altitude record. Sheets of ice coated the bag and forced it down.

His confession resulted in the arrest also of Joe Wokoszyn, a Bentleyville (Pa.) farmer, and recovery of some of the loot. Jaworski confessed also to a number of other pay-roll robberies of the "flathead mob." Turning himself a "quaker," he asked for mercy. When he was tried for the murder of a pay-roll guard and was convicted of first-degree murder.

Dry Worker to Serve Out Term

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 18. (AP)—The Indiana Supreme Court today refused three defense motions to relieve Dr. E. G. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, from the necessity of serving his sentence of sixty days at the State Farm for contempt of court.

The court refused Dr. Shumaker's motion to arrest judgment and overruled his motion for a new trial. On these two motions the court divided 3 to 2, along the same line-up as in finding Dr. Shumaker and James E. Martin, league attorney, guilty of contempt.

A motion to modify the judgment in the case of Shumaker also was overruled. Judge Gemmill and Martin not participating.

GUNMAN LIKES MENTAL "JAIL"

Psychopathic Hospital at Chicago Called "Palace"

"Patient" Objects to Test With Puzzle Blocks
Critics Oppose Sending Known Criminals

CHICAGO, Aug. 18. (Exclusive)—Plans of Chief of Police Hughes to send gangsters and gunmen to the Psychopathic Hospital instead of to jail met with the enthusiastic approval of the first "patient" thus committed.

Sam Paluno, business agent for the Shoe Repairers' Union, who is handy with stretch bombs and guns, was arrested while "educating" some shoe repairs, according to his own methods. He first was taken to the jail and then, under the new order, was removed to the Psychopathic Hospital.

HE LIKES CLEANLINESS

"This dump has got it all over the Detective Bureau cells or the Bridewell," he admitted today. "It's a palace compared to those dirty holes. The grub at first class, there isn't no rats nibbling at your toes or ears, and last night I slept between clean sheets. I'd just as soon stick around here a while, but I must get back to work."

Paluno objected to the Benet-Simon test, in which he was given a number of blocks to play with and some very simple puzzles to solve. When he arrived at the hospital he was relieved of handcuffs, given a bath, and a physical examination and a slight mental examination. He could name the President of the United States, Chicago and Cicero, but outside of that his knowledge of geography was vague.

TO BE KEPT A WEEK

Paluno will be kept in the hospital until next Thursday, unless he chooses to walk out, and will be given small tasks such as basket weaving, building houses of blocks and listening to the radio.

Many police officials and judges oppose sending known criminals, especially murderers, to the Psychopathic Hospital. They say it lays the foundation for the old insanity dodge on the ground that the prisoner has been sent there under the suspicion that he is insane. These critics agree that a murderer may be a bit wrong mentally, but should be punished as a criminal instead of being coddled as a "sick person."

CHAMBERLIN GREETED BY HOME TOWN

Atlantic Flyer Receives Hearty Ovation in Denison as Iowa Bestows Honor

DENISON (Iowa) Aug. 18. (AP)—Returning to his old home town after an absence of eight years, and fresh from his flight from New York to Germany, Clarence Chamberlin received the plaudits of his home folks that touched him more deeply, he said, than the honors heaped upon him abroad or in the East.

Hundreds of old acquaintances stood in a downpour of rain for an hour to cheer him as he rode into town in a special car escorted by a half-dozen airplanes. Then he was paraded through flag-decked streets to the home of his parents, and later in the day headed another parade to a reviewing stand, where Gov. Hammill's bestowal of a lieutenant-colonel's rank marked the official tribute of the state.

The celebration continued through the afternoon and will end tonight with a public dance on Main street. He was accompanied by his wife, his mother and father and several other relatives, and received ovations at each station along the route from daylight on.

Chamberlin said he is not surprised that some of the Pacific flyers met with difficulties. About one-half of such attempts, he said, "are likely to get somebody wet." He characterized his own feat in the Columbia as a "foolhardy stunt," and added that American planes have not yet been properly constructed or equipped for such flights.

NONUNION MEN DRIVEN FROM MINES

Ten Workers Mysteriously Missing in Another Place; Guardsman Investigates

STREUBENVILLE (O.) Aug. 18. (AP)—Nonunion miners were driven from their work in two strip mines today, one near here and the other near Cadis, and in another instance ten men mysteriously disappeared from their work.

The mines from which the workers were ejected were the Tafa mine near Cadis and the Winston Dear mine near here. At the Harmon Creek mine near Cadis ten nonunion workers were reported to have left their work last night after a party of men, said to have been union sympathizers, visited their boarding house. Their absence was not discovered until they failed to report for work today.

At the Tafa mine late this afternoon a band of men estimated by observers to have numbered 200 to 300 men marched on the mine and told Mine Superintendent T. C. Turner that the 100 men working must quit at once. Turner said that since the invading force far outnumbered those working, he acceded to the demands. Word was at once sent to Cadis and Col. L. E. Conally, Ohio National Guard, was dispatched to the scene to make an investigation. The Tafa mine has been operating on a non-union basis for some time, producing about twenty cars of coal a day.

MYSTERY BLAST DESTROYS HOME

Bakersfield Home Wrecked by Explosion

Second Residence Destroyed Within Year

Officials Seek Cause Leading to Blow-up

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 18.—Police and Sheriff's officials were attempting today to solve Bakersfield's second mysterious explosion of the year, which last night rocked East Bakersfield and demolished a five-room frame house at 1822 Pacific street.

Walls of the house were torn from the building, doors were hurled from their hinges, window and door glass panels were shattered and the floors of the west bedroom were broken, "splintered by the terrific explosion, which occurred about 10:45 p.m. Joe Garvey, who was sleeping in the house, was injured by the shock. Other occupants of the house were uninjured, but only by an unusual act of fate.

They returned yesterday from Morro Bay, where they had spent a month, and where a son, Robert, was born to them two weeks ago. Shortly before the explosion, it was discovered that ants were in the infant's bed and the family moved into another room. Mr. Black was starting to make tea in an electric percolator in the kitchen when the explosion occurred.

Officials were inclined to believe that gas, either heating or sewer, leaked under the doors and into the walls of the building and resulted in the explosion, but others refuse to accept that theory. Local plumbers and engineers declare that sewer gas sufficient to have caused the terrific shock would have made the house uninhabitable long before the explosion, and that the house had not been connected with gas at the time of the explosion.

Attempts to find traces of any explosive machine were unsuccessful. Chief of Police Phil Fickert declared today, however, charged with the floor and leaves were found in the room of the south bedroom, indicating that there was a flash of fire in the other bedroom, a package of cigarettes lying, Mr. Black had left there last night, also were found burned, further strengthening the theory that the explosion was the result of gas.

BEACON LIGHT GUIDES FLIERS

ONTARIO, Aug. 18.—Government tests of the airplane beacon placed on the hill overlooking the Los Angeles County Club, have proved satisfactory and yesterday the flashlight was set in operation to notify aviators that an emergency landing field is there. A red and white light flickered over the countryside all night, keeping its steady vigil until well after the sun had risen this morning.

No human hand is needed to care for the beacon, which is one of the system extending from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, to guide night fliers. The sun and clouds are official assistants of the guiding light. The beacon is equipped with a solaroscope and rheostat. The moment the sun is obscured by clouds, or has set, the solaroscope starts functioning. Absence of light from the sun causes the solaroscope to switch on the rheostat, which in turn ignites the electric light, which is red and white and sets the huge searchlight revolving in complete circles.

BODY OF AUTO VICTIM BURIED AT OLD HOME

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 18.—The body of Mrs. Rose Bloch, 37 years of age, of Cincinnati, O., sister of Henry Bloch, assistant manager of the Redick Department Store here, who died Tuesday night of injuries received in an automobile accident, will be buried today at her home.

Mr. Bloch, who with Mr. and Mrs. Will of Bakersfield, was also in the crash, and Mrs. Bloch's mother, Mrs. Bloch, were at the bedside when death came. The body was taken first to Los Angeles, where it was viewed by Mrs. Bloch, visiting, and then to Bakersfield, where it was viewed by Mrs. Bloch and her mother.

The fatal accident occurred when the Bloch car, driven by Mr. Bloch, left the highway to avoid a crash with a truck and turned over. Mr. Bloch and Mrs. Bloch were killed. Mrs. Bloch was killed by a blow to the head. Mrs. Bloch's left arm was badly crushed about the elbow, amputation being necessary. Blood poisoning followed.

KICK-BACK TO NEW CITY NAME

Lankershim Woman's Club Will Have to Put New Monograms on Equipment

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—When the citizens of Lankershim got together and changed the name of the town to North Hollywood they were precipitate so far as the Lankershim Woman's Club is concerned.

The membership is one of the largest in San Fernando Valley, and the clubhouse, club silver, club linen and other club equipment the most ornate. Every piece of this paraphernalia that will permit of a monogram is marked Lankershim Woman's Club.

Members are now "up in the air" whether to hang on to all equipment or renounce the club to fit the town's new monogram. As much perturbation is going on as if a State Federation election were in progress. In some manner the disturbing question is expected to be settled one way or other within the next few days, members assert.

HARVEST OF BEAN CROP IN ORANGE

Vast Acreage Devoted to Army Food to Yield Total of 600,000 Bags

SANTA ANA, Aug. 18.—With Orange county dry-land lima bean farmers getting their harvest under way and with the Irvine ranch planning to start cutting on 14,000 acres tomorrow, the gathering of 600,000 bags of limas in this district is expected to be completed by the end of the week, County Auditor William C. Jerome announced today.

The market indications today point to a price of 8½ cents for early lima beans, while slightly lower returns are thought to be likely later in the season. A holdover of 200,000 bags from last year will have a considerable effect on this year's market, it is believed.

Limas last year brought from 6 to 6½ cents. Slightly decreased acreage and the effect of warm weather while the beans were blossoming are expected to result in a smaller yield than last year, bean growers believe. Approximately 60,000 acres are in limas this season. The yield last year was 750,000 bags, Jerome stated.

Used to irrigated bean land will be delayed for perhaps two weeks, it is thought, while the crop receives another watering. Completion of the harvest, however, will come within three weeks.

CHINESE ACTORS VISIT OLD HOME

TULARE, Aug. 18.—Joe and his wife, known in eastern theatrical circles as Chong and Bessie Mooy, well-known Tulare Chinese dancers, dropped casually into Tulare for a visit before appearing on Los Angeles and San Francisco stages, where they are expected to appear before going east to continue work as headliners on the Orpheum and Keith circuits.

Joe Mooy, a Tulare boy, who received his education in the local schools, decided to attend the theatrical profession while attending the University of California. With his wife he made his first appearance at Tai's in San Francisco in 1915. They were very popular during the World Fair and went east at the call of Raymond Hitchcock, later appearing at the Biltmore Hotel and still later becoming associated with the Orpheum and Keith circuits playing in large theaters of the United States.

RARE OLD RELIC COMES TO LIGHT

PASADENA, Aug. 18.—A rare gold medallion, bearing the sixty-seven words of the Lord's Prayer on one side, and a replica of the first United States flag and the words, "U. S. Mint, Phila., 1832," on the other, was found today by A. E. Noron, Pasadena real-estate man, in the effects of his father, the late Mrs. Mary L. Noron. The medallion is only a half-inch in diameter.

Noron does not know where his father got the coin, but experts who examined it here today expressed the opinion that it is one of the rarest gold medallions in existence. It is believed to be the smallest coin bearing the Lord's Prayer in full.

NO SPOILING CHANGES

Grand Jury Report Has Little Influence With Sheriff of Orange County

SANTA ANA, Aug. 18.—The effects of the special reports of the Orange county grand jury filed yesterday, which recommended the dismissal of Jailer Orin Moncrief and his deputy, Clyde Flowers, were slow in appearing today with Moncrief and Flowers still on duty.

Sheriff Sam Jernigan, who was given a stiff verbal spanking in the report, which described him as "incompetent, inefficient and unbusinesslike," said he did not contemplate further resignations to add to the four he already has, those of Moncrief, Flowers, former Chief Constable, Flowers, former Chief Constable, and Deputy Ed McClellan and former Deputy Jailer J. B. Irvine.

Moncrief, resignation, filed with the Sheriff yesterday, was to take effect immediately. Flowers said his resignation was to take effect at the earliest convenience of the Sheriff. It was believed that Moncrief and Flowers would take their permanent departure as officials at the jail some time within the near future. With the departure of Moncrief it is expected that Deputy Jailer Faber Bray will be made acting jailer and deputy sheriff named to temporary positions under him.

It is now apparent that the grand jury report today, which could not be traced, was that recall proceedings were being considered by a strong political faction, but no definite information concerning any such move could be secured.

Many observers read one paragraph of the grand jury report as a suggestion that the Sheriff surround himself with men who have an appreciation of the full import of their habits and conduct in the duties they are called upon to discharge. That was construed to mean that further changes in the personnel in the Sheriff's office would be welcome to the members of the grand jury. Jernigan has said that he contemplates no changes other than new appointments.

Pat is a town institution dating back some ten or twelve years. One trick he has persisted in despite numerous scoldings and lightly administered switchings. Every morning for ten years he has gone on the street and come back to his own house with a copy of the Los Angeles Times in his mouth. John Rowan, local Times agent, has pursued Pat for blocks and has complained to his owner for several years, but the habit is ingrained in the terrier. Strangely enough, it is only The Times that is purloined.

For years Pat has gone to a certain hot dog stand on the corner front with his nickel in his mouth and received in return his coveted sandwich. In some way Pat learned a bit of metal would procure him the noonday lunch and many strangers have stopped to watch the dog, now in his thirteenth year, dig his nose into the hot dog stand. Pat bears the scars of battle on his white and black hide and many of the fights have been with dogs who sought to pick on Pat's proteges. Right now the Redondo Fire Department has a tiny fox terrier puppy that was being trained by grand-daddy Pat.

The dog, now in his thirteenth year, has been in the city since he was a pup. He was in the city before the war and so far has not been located through want ads, radio or house-to-house calls in Inglewood.

Mr. Hughes retired eight years ago from business life. He was president of the city for a number of years. He was one of the organizers of that institution, which later merged with the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank. He was a native of Ohio and for several years served as superintendent of schools in his home county. He later entered the lumber business in Iowa, continuing until 1906, when he came to Long Beach.

He was a member of the local Congregational Church and of its board of trustees. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. M. Hughes, a brother, Mr. Hughes of Columbia, O., and a sister, Mrs. Ida M. Evans of Williamsburg, Iowa. Funeral services will be held at the Patterson & McQuinn funeral home on Saturday at 10 o'clock. Interment will be at Sunny-side Mausoleum.

Fights Divorce Across Ocean

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 18.—Although unable to come in person because of migration laws, Marjorie Linderbojm, in distant Holland, fought in San Diego's Superior Court today to pre-empt the divorce suit filed by her husband, Marjorie Linderbojm, from getting a divorce against her. Attorneys were making the fight for the woman.

Linderbojm seeks divorce on the grounds that Marjorie deserted him in January, 1913, and his answer is that he never would supply her funds for her support. He is recognized by the time three of their sons pooled a fund for her transportation the United States immigration laws had been changed so that she was not permitted to enter. The Linderbojms were married in Holland in 1903 and have five children, two of whom are still minors.

LA HABRA PROMISED BETTER SERVICE

LA HABRA, Aug. 18.—Definite promise of better toll telephone service between La Habra and other points in Orange county, which has been the subject of agitation here for some months, has been made by engineers of the State Railroad Commission.

A. B. Fry, telephone and telegraph engineer with headquarters in San Francisco, and E. V. Rucker, telephone engineer in Orange county, were present at a City Council session at the invitation of Charles B. Rucker of this city, newly elected president of the organization.

The group plans a State convention in Pasadena and will meet here the 25th inst. to discuss it. Rucker said. The organization was formed to lend stability to the industry and to make sure that the State laws are complied with by all member manufacturers.

Other officers are J. J. Perry, Hollywood, vice-president; J. W. Wilson, Los Angeles, secretary; and F. O. Bennewitz, Hollywood, treasurer. Members of the board of directors include Clyde Scott, chairman; B. J. Gallagher, J. J. Perry, C. C. Jenkins, F. O. Bennewitz, J. W. Nichols, Charles Herman and A. J. Gay.

The bridges will cost $12,000 each and will be located on the Brea-Las Vegas intersection on North Spadra Road. Although steps will be taken by the Council to divert the flood waters around the city it was pointed out by the City Engineer that there is still an area of five square miles in which flood waters can concentrate. As a result the three bridges will be needed, it is declared.

MOVING PICTURES CLEANER

Pasadena Censor Board Reduced to One Member Who Checks Up on News Dealers

PASADENA, Aug. 18.—Confidence in the motion-picture producers has prompted the city to reduce its Board of Review, which in the past has censored all films shown in Pasadena, from three members to one, City Manager R. V. Orison announced today.

In the future, C. V. Cowan will be the only municipal censor, and will devote most of his time to keeping the newsstands free of salacious magazines. Orison stated today. Dr. Cowan, who is a retired Methodist minister, has been assisted in the past by F. M. Chapin and Mr. G. H. Turnbull. Their services have now been dispensed with.

The Board of Review was established when residents of the city objected several years ago to some of the pictures shown here. Since its establishment, the members of the board have viewed pictures, in Los Angeles before they were shown here and have in some cases cut out portions of the films.

Mr. Orison said that the motion-picture producers are endeavoring to produce clean pictures. Orison stated today, "and under the circumstances the conditions do not warrant sending reviewers to Los Angeles to inspect pictures which are shown here later. The situation is that one man can devote his time to inspecting pictures, and also in keeping undesirable literature off the newsstands."

NO APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

PASADENA, Aug. 18.—Francis E. Stevens, vice-president of the First National Bank of Pasadena, today issued a statement denying that officers of the local bank had appealed to President Coolidge after the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday refused to sustain the petition of the local bank which seeks to prevent the First National Bank of Los Angeles from merging under the name "First National-Consolidated Bank and Trust Company of Los Angeles."

Stevens predicted that a number of suits will be filed in Southern California Superior courts by First National banks of various communities against the use of the proposed merger name.

STOCKS MOVE

forest. Judging from the leading trade and bank reviews, business appears to be running along on an even keel, with indications of a normal upturn in activity during the fall and winter. The low margin of profit in many lines is partly compensated for by the increased turnover.

Recent strength of the northwest rail has been in anticipation of heavy crop movements, and higher earnings, and in some cases hopes of higher dividends. New Haven lost ground on the traditional "selling on the good news" following ratification of the preferred stock issues and the official prediction of a resumption of dividends on the common stock. Baltimore and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson and Nickel Plate common each advanced 2 points or more.

Motor shares continued to prove an enigma to most traders. Recent introduction of new models has been accompanied by an increase in operations by a few manufacturers, but others appear to be taking a cautious attitude, pending further information on the plans of Ford, Packard, General Motors is not generally expected to get into heavy production until late in the winter. General Motors closed fractionally higher at 226, after fluctuating between 224-3/4 and 226-3/4. Hudson, which has been heavily bought on talk of an increase from $2.80 to $3 in annual dividend, turned into heavy selling after touching 87-1/4 and sold down to 84-3/4, off 1-3/4 net. Chrysler, after fluctuating within a range of 1 point, but Mack Truck turned upward.

CONTRACT HELPS

Warren Bros. advanced 3 points to a new peak at 95 1/2 on the announcement of a large Cuban contract. Other issues to break into new high ground included Abitibi Power, May Department Stores, Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck, Woolworth, New York Dock, Gotham Silk Hosiery, Bethlehem Steel and Mackay Radio companies, although some of the gains were cancelled.

Although net declines of 1 to 3 points were scattered throughout the list, there was little evidence of any bear speculation. The demand for stocks in the "heat crowd" indicated the presence of a sizeable short interest, particularly in some of the high-priced specialties.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange trading was dull, with fluctuations extremely narrow and irregular. Demand sterling ruled firm, around $4.83-3/4, and French francs were again quoted just under 25.02 cents.

Reactionary tendencies predominated in the commodity markets. Both cotton and wheat pointed upward in the early trading, but lost their gains. Wheat futures showing net declines of about 1 cent a bushel, while cotton closed prices unchanged. Coffee quotations fell back 10 to 16 points. Sugar held steady.

SHOES OF GARY
HARD TO FILL

Right than by an incident in the memory of the writer. When Henry P. Davidson died it was necessary to call a number of important men at their homes late at night for expressions of opinion. In almost every case the telephone call was answered in formal tones by a manservant. The call at Judge Gary's home was answered by Mrs. Gary who called immediately, "Gilbert, you wanted on the telephone," just as millions of other American wives would do.

Judge Gary could always get the other fellow's viewpoint because he was an ordinary man before anything else. That is why he retained the admiration and respect of his employees and his competitors, the independent steel manufacturers.

The man who follows Judge Gary back to his big shoes, independent, discreet or ill-advised action from the chairman of the Steel Corporation could precipitate a great deal of trouble in the steel world.

INYO FUNDS TO BE SOUGHT HERE

Court Permit to Open Safe Boxes Will be Asked
Recovery of $500,000 from Waterworks Expected
Second Enterprise of Pair Loses License

Three safety deposit vaults believed to contain more than $500,000 in notes and securities of Mark Q. and W. W. Waterman, Inyo county banks and sponsors of five county banks which have failed in the past few weeks, will be the object of search warrants to be asked today by Dep. Dist. Atty. Fisher in Municipal Court.

The three vaults, located by Bank Examiner Davis, are said to have been taken in the names of the Watermans in one instance and assumed names in the other two. Permission to drill and search the vaults will be asked in the search warrants.

Appearing before Dep. Dist. Atty. Thoms yesterday, Bank Examiner Davis indicated that not only he will be present when the vaults are opened but that Dist. Atty. Hession of Inyo county will arrive early in the morning to participate.

It is understood here that the deposit boxes are located in a local hotel and two banks. It is reported that the boxes were placed there by the Watermans personally, or by closely connected agents.

Although Mr. Hession was not present at the search launched here, it was learned that the report to local officials showed that the information had come to Bank Examiner Davis from the Inyo county prosecutor.

Mr. Hession, earlier in the day, had provided an additional surprise at Bishop when the two Watermans appeared before Justice of Peace Patterson to waive preliminary examination on forty-three felony counts of embezzlement and falsifying bank reports.

The asserted felonies involve approximately $400,000, according to information from the center of the Owens Valley financial crash.

Payment of $850,000 to Wife Looms With Trust Fund for Children

Charles S. Chaplin is about to settle his little life with his young wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, by a payment of $850,000, or slightly more, it was learned yesterday.

In the face of a noncommittal silence on the part of both the comedian and his wife's battery of attorneys, circumstantial reports were forthcoming that the details of the settlement have been virtually fixed and that nothing now remains but a few minor technicalities.

As soon as these minor points are cleared away, it was indicated, the formal announcement of the settlement will be made. Just where and when the announcement will be forthcoming, however, remains conjectural.

It is expected, though, that the setting for the conclusion of the bitter fight, which at one time threatened to involve five of the screen's major feminine luminaries in addition to a couple who shine but a little less, will be the courtroom of Judge Guerin of the Superior Court next Monday.

At that time, the quietest of the comedian's attorneys, headed by the firm of Mrs. Chaplin's counsel, headed by her uncle, Edwin T. McMurray, are expected to inform the court that a settlement has been effected—such an announcement is made before that time.

Prisoner Discloses Story of High Financing Tells How He Formed Pool Among Deputies
Seventeen Named as Quiz of Affair Looms

A remarkable tale of "frenzied finance," asserted to involve seventeen members of Sheriff Traeger's forces, came out of the County Jail last night as rumors were heard of a possible Civil Service Commission investigation of hectic stock manipulations behind prison bars.

Standing out in the story as a stock promoter par excellence is W. E. Nelson, 26 years of age, former New York and Los Angeles stockbroker, who declares that he, while a prisoner in the County Jail, organized a "pool" among the jail employees, cornered all the floating stock of a mining corporation and was hoping to have himself elected president of the organization.

The Civil Service Commission is expected to investigate Nelson's assertions that seventeen jail employees cornered a short time more than $8000 for asserted pool, and also, the prisoner's further contention that he was allowed to leave the County Jail on certain days in company with an attendant while he forced the stock up or down on the stock exchange.

A battle among members of the pool in the jail that developed into "mass meetings" of inquisitive investors and delegations that waited on Nelson with cell demands for their money back, resulted, Nelson asserted, in his being detained longer in jail than necessary and in his being prompted himself yesterday to make a "clean breast" of things.

NELSON'S STATEMENT
High spots from the incarcerated stock broker's tale as told yesterday were: He was sentenced to the Los Angeles County Jail on November 30, 1925, for two years on bad-check order; he was appointed a trustee in the booking office of the jail, working by mail with an inmate knowledge of stocks and with a capital of $800 he invested in mining stocks and ran his capital up to more than $8000.

VETERANS TO MEET AT PALISADES

Fortieth Annual Ten-Day Encampment of Civil War Men Opens 30th Inst.
Veterans of the Civil War will meet in their fortieth annual ten-day encampment at Pacific Palisades, according to an announcement by Dr. O. H. Menet of Los Angeles, Commander of the Southern California Veterans' Association, which is sponsoring the coming encampment.

An attendance of about 800 is expected. The records of the Southern California Telephone Company show that there are twenty-five telephones to every 100 persons, or that in an area of 192 square miles covered by the exchange with a population of 1,210,000 there are 307,471 telephones in service.

That was on January 1, last, and is almost double the number of phones in the exchange January 1, 1922, when the last telephone census was taken. Then there were 162,122 phones in service, or about twenty-two to every 100 persons.

Since the first of the year there have been 12,285 new telephones added and around the country it almost would seem that everybody in the city is fairly well connected, but figures show that there still is room for a great deal more telephone conversation than exists now.

Former Gov. Stephens, who is at the Santa Fe Hospital suffering from stomach disorder, was reported out of danger last night by Dr. Arthur M. Hoffman.

ASK GIRL SCHOOL HEARING

Parents and Teachers Urge Supervisors to Have Open Meeting in El Retiro Feud
Expressing distress at the situation in the El Retiro School for Girls, brought about by the discharge of Miss Amy Holzschuh as superintendent and a protest walkout of more than forty girls of the school, the First District of the California Congress of Parent and Teacher Associations in a resolution passed by the executive committee yesterday asked a public hearing on the matter be granted by the Board of Supervisors.

The resolution, in which the committee expressed appreciation of the support given the school by the Board of Supervisors, was signed by Mrs. Wayland Willson as first district president and by Mrs. J. B. Tagert as secretary. Indorsement was given the school and its policies as well as the constructive work of the institution for unfortunate children.

Reasons Given
In denying the charge of insubordination and the appointment of Miss Holzschuh as superintendent of the San Fernando school were given by Charles D. Lusby, chairman of the probation committee. The reasons were contained in a supplemental letter of discharge under date of the 18th inst., addressed to Miss Holzschuh.

SECOND SMALL PRAYER BOBS UP

This One Engraved in Square on Charm

A GOLD-HEADED pin with the Lord's Prayer engraved thereon is acting as a magnet to draw other such works of art. The latest is a small gold charm about a quarter of an inch in diameter with the sixty-seven words of the Lord's Prayer engraved within a square upon its surface. The charm, by its regularity, can be distinguished as letters by the naked eye, but a magnifying glass is necessary to decipher them.

This charm belongs to Mrs. W. R. Lamb of 720 West Forty-second street. It was given to her about forty years ago by a jeweler in Rockville, Ct., and Mrs. Lamb believes it came originally from England.

STIRRING TREE PLEA MADE

Farming, Flood Control and Future of Nation Said to Depend on Reforestation

"You can't legislate fertility back into the soil, and the only adequate, permanent flood protection, water conservation and land salvation lies in an aggressive, continuous campaign of reforestation," declared George H. Barnes, president of the board of governors of the American Green Cross, in an address yesterday before the United Church Brotherhood and the Young Men's Christian Association.

"God is not mocked, and no nation can wantonly waste His rich bounties and destroy His handiwork and expect to regain those gifts through artificial methods," said Mr. Barnes.

GREAT DESTRUCTION

"The forest, mother of rivers, is the basis of all our industries and all our prosperity," continued the speaker. "In the beginning America had 822,000,000 acres of virgin forest land—a vast domain of trees that fed our soil, tempered the winds, gave food and shelter to man, beast and bird, controlled flood waters, beautified the landscape, mothered the rains and provided material for all our needs. We have destroyed five-sixths of those forests, with practically no thought of reforestation and we have been punished."

"From 1800 to 1900 our crops increased every year. Then began the decrease with a gradual decline within the last twenty-six years. The forest of production to the farmer, for fertilizer, water, labor and other items has increased 1150 per cent in the last twenty-six years. When the forests go, our lumber, water, birds, bird life, fish, soil and storm protection all go and the Four Horsemen, flood, fire, pestilence and famine, ride through the land with death at their head."

APATHY ASSAILED

"Witness the terrible drought that followed the forest fires of 1924. Witness the recent floods that devastated the Mississippi Valley, with 600,000 families rendered destitute because of the apathy of the American people to protect their heritage. The Mississippi flood would never have happened if there had been a six years' growth of brush and trees on the 121,000,000 acres at the head of the river that make up the Father of Waters."

"We have no forest policy in the United States. We are doing nothing with our 400,000,000 acres of idle forest lands and we are heading swiftly toward the conditions of China and other lands whose people wasted their forests and neglected to use their intelligence in the matter of reforestation. Concrete dikes and sandbags, fertilizer and the attempts to drain from the dry earth the waters that are not there will not save us. Reforestation is the only cure."

LAND ABANDONED

"In 1850 there were 775 fine lakes and streams, many of them navigable, in the United States, but count me such bodies of water today," continued the speaker. "Yet we have ten times as great a population as in 1850, with 100 times greater need for water. More than 35,000,000 acres of farm land have been abandoned within the last six years, yet the farmer stands on the broad box of the world."

Another speaker was M. C. Hutchinson, secretary of the church-relations committee of the Community Chest, who pleaded for support of the campaign to start October 31.

Dr. C. C. MacLean announced that the meeting next Thursday at noon will be attended by many prominent ministers and motion-picture producers who will discuss the theme, "Clean Motion Pictures."

Special Train for Legion Men Going to Paris

With more than 300 Legion men and their families already booked and reservations still being made, final arrangements are being completed for the second expeditionary force movement to Paris for the annual convention of the American Legion in September.

Two Southern Pacific trains have been assigned for the first leg of the journey from Los Angeles to New York and it is probable a third train will be necessary to carry the Southern California delegation.

The American Legion special train will leave from the Southern Pacific station at 11 o'clock on the morning of September 2, traveling over the Golden State Route via Chicago.

Angelo Bessolo, Jr., national France convention officer for this district, will be in charge of the delegation from here. The official parties of Commander Phil Dodson and Adjutant James K. Fisk of the Department of California also will be on the train, as well as the drum corps of Victory Post of Los Angeles.

Court Restores Dental License to Dr. Mitchell

Dr. Ralph Mitchell, dentist, was wrongfully deprived of his license by the State Board of Dental Examiners, it is held by Judge Mahon of the Superior Court, in a judgment wherein the proceedings of the board are set aside and Dr. Mitchell is restored to the right to practice his profession.

Dr. Mitchell, in an accusation, was charged with having "split fees" with W. D. Cohn, a layman. He was brought to hearing before the board of examiners and on June 22, last, his license was revoked on a finding that he had been guilty of unprofessional conduct.

He immediately obtained a writ of review commanding the board to appear before the Superior Court and show cause why its action should not be reversed. At a hearing before Judge Mahon, it was established that Cohn was engaged in a clerical capacity in Dr. Mitchell's office and the court held that the board had no jurisdiction to deprive him of his license on account of the situation.

LEWIS TRIAL HONORS EVEN

Government Loses Point and Then Wins One During Skirmish in Mail-Fraud Case

The government yesterday broke even in a legal skirmish with attorneys representing E. G. Lewis and associates, charged with using the mails to defraud. J. E. Simpson and Ames Peterson, assistant United States attorneys, endeavored to have records of the State Mining Bureau admitted in evidence, but Federal Judge Jacobs overruled the motion.

It was stated that the law recently adopted by the State Legislature is clear that the records of the mining bureau cannot be used in open court except in a criminal case where violation of the mining law itself is at issue.

Lewis and associates are charged with using the mails to defraud in that they advertised their "oil well" circulation getting scheme in a misleading manner, particularly in regard to the productivity of the wells they were to drill and in which subscribers to the "California Illustrated Review" were to have interests.

After much controversy, the government's prosecutors finally managed to get into the record their contention that the wells were misrepresented. This was done in testimony of postal inspectors who identified certain records as having passed between Lewis and William Abrams, one of his associates, on the one hand and the State Mining Bureau on the other. The trial will be continued today.

LOS ANGELES PRODUCE TERMINAL. CENTRAL MFG. DISTRICT.

Now Under Construction!

The New LOS ANGELES PRODUCE TERMINAL

Steam shovels started working August 18th on the first $1,500,000 group of buildings, a part of the $3,500,000 Produce Terminal to be erected in the Central Manufacturing District of Los Angeles.

Description The first units, exclusive of team tracks, cover 500,000 square feet of ground, and include 100 produce stores, covered parking space for 300 producers, 50 offices, and stores for restaurants and general purposes. All buildings are fireproof, of reinforced concrete and steel construction. Banking, telegraph, express and air mail facilities are to be provided.

Operation A separate department of the Central Manufacturing District will be set up for the management of the Terminal. Tenants will benefit by the low rentals and complete facilities, and will have a voice in determining operating policies with an ultimate share in the ownership of the Terminal itself. Taxes, insurance and operating costs will be exceptionally low. Large adjacent areas are reserved to protect the future expansion of the market.

Location Leading city and county traffic arteries, from all directions, converge at this centrally located point and aid farmers in making deliveries to this market. Likewise, central location, outside the congested areas, simplifies distribution. Directly across the street, the 3,200,000 cubic foot plant of the Federal Cold Storage Company provides adequate storage and refrigeration service.

Transportation Los Angeles' only neutral belt line, the Los Angeles Junction Railway, serving the Terminal, connects directly with all railroads. Tenants are thus relieved of switching charges on both incoming and outgoing line haul carload shipments. Additional facilities are offered by consolidated team tracks on the property. A Joint Freight Agency, acting for all railroads, coordinates freight movement and simplifies traffic problems.

BYRD'S BACKWARD LOOK

Commander Byrd, exponent of the most advanced methods of the highest civilization of all time, will create a remarkable paradox in his explorations on the Antarctic continent, for much of his work will have to do with the unearthing of the hidden records of bygone ages. If he discovers naked lands, valleys not blanketed by glaciers, peaks not capped by ice he will be able to tell geologists where they can study the life that once breathed where now all is frozen silence.

Explorers already have brought back from the Antarctic continent fossil remains that indicate there was once life in abundance where the land is now buried deep in ice and snow. Some of the fossils are said to prove that there were once not only great numbers of plants and animals on the Antarctic continent, but that at one time it was the site of tropical life.

Scientists have so far failed satisfactorily to account for this phenomenon. Some think the whole earth was once of tropical climate. Some believe the poles shifted in some catastrophic manner, while others think the change was gradual, as the continents slid round the globe in ice centuries. Still others hold that climatic change is itself a part of the cycle of geological time without reference to the poles. Important secrets lie buried in the unfriendly wastes over which Commander Byrd will fly. There the most forward of civilization's strides may lead to the long-est backward look.

CALIFORNIA'S RESPONSIBILITY

On Monday will convene in Denver a conference of the Governors and river commissions of the seven Colorado River Basin States in a renewed effort to get together on a program for the control and development of the river.

Upon the success of this conference's effort to secure from at least six of the seven States represented unconditional ratification of the Hoover plan for the allocation of the river's water will depend the success or failure of the Swing-Johnson bill at the next session of Congress in December—or earlier if a special session should be called.

Whether or not such unconditional ratification by six States is secured depends entirely upon the California delegation, headed by Gov. Young. Upon Gov. Young himself rests the major responsibility of loosening from the Colorado Compact the crippling bonds which Young's own political group have knotted about it.

Five years ago representatives of these same seven States—Arizona, California, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Nevada and New Mexico—met at Santa Fe to consider and if possible to ratify a plan presented by Herbert Hoover whereby the waters of the Colorado River should be equitably divided between the seven States at interest. All the States except Arizona ratified it.

The failure of Arizona to join with the others made necessary a revision of the pact. Largely through the efforts of Mr. Hoover it was made possible to get Congressional action providing Federal aid for river development providing only that States should agree on the plan. The six-State pact was duly formulated and presented in turn to the legislatures of the several States. Five ratified it promptly and unconditionally. California, the State which has most to gain through development and control of the river, refused to ratify save with reservations which effectively nullified the pact.

These reservations, formulated by the Johnson-Young faction in the Legislature and introduced by Senator Finney, its spokesman, made California's ratification conditional upon the government's undertaking to build a high dam in the lower basin, at or near Boulder Canyon. This condition was totally extraneous to the Hoover pact, which had solely to do with the allocation of the waters among the States.

The effect of this action by California was to halt in its tracks the entire plan for river development. The Federal government took the natural position that, unless the States concerned could agree on a program, the government itself could do nothing.

After two more years of maneuvering on the part of politicians and political groups seeking to exploit the situation for personal advantage Gov. Richardson called a special session of the California Legislature in another effort to secure unconditional ratification of the Hoover pact. This conference was called for last October in the hope that California might remove the obstacles to Federal action before Congress should meet in the following December.

Led by the same Johnson-Young political group which had previously blocked unconditional ratification, the California Legislature maintained its obdurate attitude and refused to withdraw the Finney reservations. Largely because of this continued failure of California and the rest of the basin States to agree among themselves on what should be done Congress again refused to take any action looking toward Colorado River development.

Now, five years after the original proposal was made, California is given another opportunity to act in her own interest. The rewritten Swing-Johnson bill specifically provides that Federal aid shall be predicated on unqualified ratification by the six States of the Hoover pact. The bill will be one of the first major pieces of legislation to come before the new Congress. It has a good chance to pass, provided at least six States present at Washington a united front on the question. Whether they will so unite depends upon the action taken at the Denver conference and specifically upon the California delegation at that gathering.

There has never been any sensible reason, political or economic, why California should have rescinded her original ratification of the Hoover pact, made in 1922. River control and development have always depended on interstate agreement and from such control and development California stands to benefit more directly and immediately than any other State.

California's Imperial Valley lies in the path of potential destruction from the recurrent annual floods of the Colorado—a menace which will be removed only when the river is dammed. The future growth of Southern California communities depends upon an adequate supply of water for domestic uses—a supply which can come only from a harnessed Colorado. California's fertile valleys in the river's basin depend for their continued well-being upon an abundant, year-around supply of irrigating water—which can only be had through equating the river's flow by means of a dam.

For years California has been standing in her own light, thanks to the activities of politicians of the Johnson-Young group, who form the bulk of the State's representation at the Denver conference.

Whether the great obstacle—California's—to the national program for the development of the Colorado River is there removed depends on them and even more particularly upon Gov. Young himself.

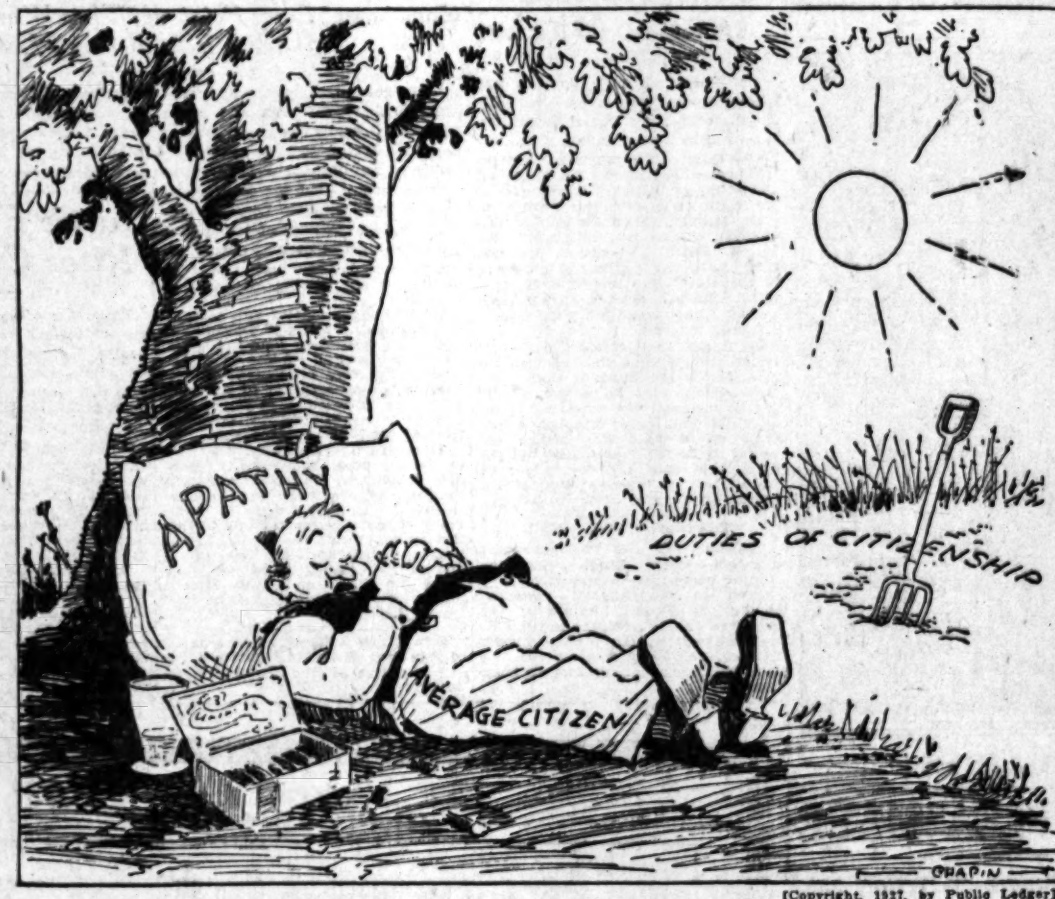

If the conference fails to attain its object—a six-State agreement—theirs will be the responsibility.

CONSIDER OUR COAL FILE

The world's coal pile in 1926 consisted of about 15,000,000,000 tons. It went the way of coal generally. Soot, ashes, warmth and energy were its principal products. Now comes science and demonstrates that we have been about as wise in so doing as those who would burn a building to secure needed heat. Nature packed in that dirty-looking coal pile not only much sunshine, heat and light of early ages, but oils, gases and rare products that nourished the vegetable growths that were turned into coal. Chemists have been tearing apart the coal molecules and recovering from them kerosene, gasoline, motor oils and gases—to mention some of the most valuable ingredients employed by nature in making coal. They lose nothing in the process, but enormously increase the value of coal, which becomes, in fact, almost too valuable to be used primarily as fuel.

German scientists after years of research have perfected processes that recover from a given mass of coal all but about 9 per cent of the original weight in the shape of kerosene, gasoline and motor oils. They have so effectively demonstrated the practical nature of their discovery that capital has been interested and erected great factories to utilize the processes. One of them cost 8,000,000 gold marks and is capable of using 160 tons of coal daily.

This may be the beginning of a new epoch in industry. In this country we have such an abundance of petroleum that we do not appreciate fully the importance of the discovery, but we are using our oil reserves at such a prodigious rate that it may be necessary at no distant period to engage in the synthetic production of petroleum and other products of coal. Thus our dirty coal pile is found to be a mass of potential wealth that may be used to help out in nearly every department of industry.

THE THEATER STRIKE THREAT

The action of the "organized" musicians and other unionized theater employees of Los Angeles in threatening to strike on September 1 marks another effort of the unions to obtain a foothold in Los Angeles. Numerous attempts have been made in the past similarly to intimidate the owners of theaters and connected enterprises, especially by the musicians' union. In the main these have been met courageously by the business men involved, but not yet, it seems, have the agitators learned that there is a limit to which public patience may be stretched. Inasmuch as a strike of musicians, stage hands and motion-picture machine operators would interfere with the legitimate amusement to which the public is entitled the question becomes one of more than internal concern.

Los Angeles and Hollywood have gained their enviable positions as leaders in the stage and film world by a consistent refusal to accept organized labor's dictates. Efforts to unionize the film world have met with failure, the most recent move in that direction having been frustrated when serious reflection convinced players of the error of affiliating with the Actors' Equity Association. It is equally important that the union agitators be not allowed to control the operation of legitimate and vaudeville houses.

Union spokesmen have announced that only one day will be granted employers for consideration after the present contract expires on the 31st inst. If their wage increase demands are not met by that time, they say, the walkout will follow. Of itself such an ultimatum is an index of bad faith. If their demands are justifiable it certainly is necessary that time be allowed for fair consideration of the requests. If not justifiable, such precipitate action is an added affront to the public and to the amusement industry.

THE MECHANICAL ENGINEER

Next week Los Angeles will have the privilege of entertaining the National Association of Stationary Engineers, which meets here for its forty-fifth annual convention. An additional feature of the occasion will be a mechanical exhibit of products and inventions connected with recent engineering development. The double event will offer every resident of Southern California engaged in mechanical and engineering enterprises an opportunity for instruction and enlightenment as valuable as it is rare.

The exhibit will contain numerous displays of articles and products of interest to all commercially connected with every branch of the engineering industry. For the general public educational entertainment will be provided, illustrating the development of natural power resources through the use of hydroelectric energy, gas, petroleum and other applications of scientific discovery.

For forty-four years the National Association of Stationary Engineers has represented the mechanical side of the profession so intimately connected with the material progress of the present century. The organization maintains technical schools, issues a trade journal and spends $12,000 annually for education and research work. Under its charter it can take no place in wage disputes nor use political methods or engage in activities outside its specified educational sphere.

When we have thrilled sufficiently over the feats of the heroes of the air, when we have appropriately honored the inventors and scientists for giving us the X-ray, the submarine, the cheap motor, the X-ray and other modern marvels we may find time to bestow a meed of praise on the mechanical engineers, but for whose co-operation the airplane, the submarine, the radio set, the gasoline motor would never have got far beyond the laboratory stage. The mechanical exhibit in the Ambassador Auditorium next week will give every visitor a better idea of what makes the wheels go round.

MINIMUM SPEED LIMITS

Wyandotte county, Kansas, is the latest unit of government to consider a minimum speed limit for an important boulevard. Minimum limits are little favored by motorists and seldom enforced when enacted. California has no minimum speed limit as such, but has high way law enough to obtain a similar effect if it were enforced. Slow traffic is obliged by law to move to the right to allow faster traffic to pass, but one of the sharpest thorns in the flesh of the California driver is the antiquated flivver put-putting along on the crown of the road at fifteen miles an hour or the huge truck rolling along crab-fashion all over the middle and the center lanes.

The thousands of competent drivers who fight for an open road to and from the city every day know that too-slow driving is as undesirable as too much speed. Any motor commuter living ten miles outside the city would be satisfied and gratified if he could drive into business in thirty minutes without breaking the speed limit and if he had a clear path anyone could do it. Blocked, halted and jammed in every other block, he eventually finds himself tearing along madly below it for the next ten. A chain of traffic is so faster than the slowest rattler in it, under existing conditions. And this is what is known as an age of speed and efficiency!

TIME PAYMENTS

According to the experts more than one-seventh of the total income of our citizenry goes to the installment man. The habit of buying on partial payments has become so well established in the nation that America must work at least one day every week to meet these obligations. Anything from a wedding ring to a snow plow may be bought under this plan. Lots of young folks would never get married were it not for the amiable complaisance of the installment man. Whether this is a condition to be commended is a hotly debated question.

TAXING BOBS

Finding that he could not restrain the women of his country from bobbing their hair, a practice he detests, the Greek Minister of Finance has levied a tax upon all such coiffures, thus making bobbing a source of revenue to the state. Feminine Helene! However, hits one barber's foot just the same and doubtless will continue to do so while the fashion lasts.

HOOKEY
 By James J. Montague
 I feel but small emotion
 When finally I'm free
 To go on my vacation
 By mountain, stream or sea.
 I find but scant enjoyment
 In thinking, as I play,
 That I'll have no employment
 For many a long, long day.

It ought to have a pleasant effect upon my mind
 To know that for the present
 My work is left behind,
 To think that eager rest
 And energy untried
 Have earned this month of rest.

And yet I little treasure
 The time that I can use,
 Pursuing idle pleasure
 Wherever I may choose.
 No longer hours I gather,
 And every now and then
 I feel that I would rather
 Be back at work again.

But when I do not finish
 A job that should be done
 No worry can diminish
 An afternoon of fun.
 I'm happiest when I wander,
 With neither reck nor rue,
 For all the time I squander,
 If I have work to do.

AMERICANS ABROAD

BY EVELYN McDOWELL

Recently I received a letter from a friend, in which was inclosed a newspaper clipping containing an interview with a prominent New Yorker. He had just returned from a trip around the world and had evidently had indigestion all the way around. He didn't have a single good word to say of any country except the U.S.A. Now there is no denying that America is by far the best country on earth; but do we have a monopoly of all the virtues? ## SOCIETY

BY JANA NEAL LEVY

Among the interesting and interesting visitors to Los Angeles this month are Mr. and Mrs. James H. Scruggs of Birmingham, Ala., who with their two sons are guests for the month at the Mayfair.

Mr. Scruggs is a nephew of Thomas Jefferson Douglas, who, with Mrs. Douglas, is planning a number of delightful affairs in honor of the visitors from the southern city. Mr. Scruggs is one of the most prominent and influential business men of Alabama while Mrs. Scruggs is a leader of the social and club world in her home city.

Their two sons, James Hubert, Jr., and Richard Scruggs, are college men, the former just having been graduated from the University of Alabama, specializing in journalism, and is to enter the School of Journalism in New York this fall. He took two courses at the college at his graduation.

Tomorrow Mr. Douglas and his son, Thomas Jefferson Douglas, Jr., are entertaining with a luncheon for their men relatives at the Jonathan Club, while Mrs. Douglas has bidden a small circle of intimate friends to meet Mrs. Scruggs at luncheon at the Women's Athletic Club.

On their way to California the Scruggses motored through Canada and down the coast, stopping at all the various points of interest en route, and on their way back they will visit for some time in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas make their home at the Brandon Apartments in Westwood, where they have purchased some months ago and it is called in compliment to the family name of Mrs. Douglas, who was a Miss Brandon.

Gov. Brandon of Alabama is a close relative of Mrs. Douglas, and has visited there several times when in Southern California.

Luncheon Party
Commenting Mrs. Patrick H. O'Brien of St. Louis, Mo., who is visiting in Southern California this summer, Mrs. Alexander C. Smith entertained with a luncheon at the Hollywood Country Club last Thursday.

Centering the table was a large bowl of pink and blue late-summer flowers, with pink candelabra lighting the board at either end. Among the guests from St. Louis were Mrs. Patrick H. O'Brien, Mrs. E. C. Beckwith, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, Mrs. Thomas L. Harding and Miss Helena Harding, others including Mrs. Guy S. Garner, Mrs. Chester C. Smith, Mrs. David E. Spangler, Mrs. Elvin J. ## YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Elford

Mrs. Elford will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES ON NEW FOODS IN HOT WEATHER

In spite of all the advice that is given to mothers on the necessity of being careful with their children's diet in hot weather, there generally is a tendency among mothers to "take a chance." Because they like certain fruits and vegetables, ready berries, green corn, and the like, and because most small children will clamor for what they see the elders eating, the mother lets her baby eat the things she herself is eating. If she has any conscientious scruples about it she tells them by saying: "I believe in letting a child have what he wants to eat."

There could be no more pernicious policy, for it is behind such a horse that the long trail of summer maladies ride. Even if one can take chances with a child's diet in the winter one can not deviate an iota in the summer time, and one should be unusually careful even with the foods to which the child is accustomed.

To put a small baby at the table in his high chair on a hot Sunday and give him bits of fried chicken and thick gravy and tastes of this and that vegetable, and ice cream, is to court trouble. None of these foods are in themselves harmful, in fact homemade ice cream is a delicious dessert for the young child, but it decidedly is not a between-meal tidbit, and yet it is in this way that ice cream is most often used. The mother and the rest of the family who adore feeding the baby are sure to be sure that the baby is loading his stomach with unneeded food between his regular feedings, and giving him a little, such as a spoonful of fruit, or a bit of cooked and seasoned for an adult. Such babies are usually bottle fed, and a bottle fed baby is put at the table and allowed to nibble unmolested on anything that his hands reach for. Of course, this upsets his digestion, and a bottle fed baby is a whole meal for the small baby and he doesn't need anything else. If he is old enough to eat other foods he should have what is proper for him at regular hours and those hours are the same as his feedings and not between feedings. It is very useful for young mothers to think of milk only as something to eat, and not as a food which he needs other than milk. If he is able to digest it.

All of which leads back to the earlier warning. Unless a baby is used to a food don't feed it to him in hot weather. Stick to the foods to which he is accustomed. Don't listen to persons who (because it isn't their baby) are only too willing to say "Oh, give him a little. It won't hurt him." Perhaps it won't—but why take a chance when the results can be so serious?

VAN NUYS, Aug. 18.—The body of Mrs. Mary Anne Lawson, 84 years of age, who died at her home on Bellair street, has been shipped to Coeyton, Iowa, for interment. Mrs. Lawson had resided in San Fernando Valley for a number of years.

Girls Relate Particulars of Tia Juana Trip

SANTA ANA, Aug. 19.—A visit to Tia Juana, plans for which were laid to the girls of the Santa Ana High school and the actual start at night made from a Balboa dance pavilion, formed the basis of a trip to Santa Ana today. The trip, it is said, included a visit to the Santa Ana boys' school, a visit to the Santa Ana hotel and an all-night stay at a San Diego hotel and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Wilson, Cecil Burke and Albert Culler, all of Santa Ana, accompanied the girls, contributing to the delinquency of a minor Santa Ana girl.

A note was delivered by another member of the party under the protection to the mother of the girl, in which the girl said she was going to spend the night at Carlsbad with friends, according to the testimony. The complaining witness, who was on the stand this afternoon, said that she and another girl, not a minor, were left in the car and had to beg a ride back to Santa Ana with a pair of Long Beach sheiks. The girls attacked the girls on the way back and they sought refuge at a filling station. It was said, where an Orange county District Attorney, noting their disheveled condition, and the distressed situation, brought them back to Santa Ana.

A motion for dismissal of the charges against Mrs. Wilton and Burke, made by Attorney Otto Jacobs, was denied by Judge Allen. Culler is defended by David Weisberg. Dep. Dist. Atty. S. B. Kaufmann and Sam Collins are handling the prosecution. The case, which has attracted considerable attention, is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

SUNBURN EXCUSE FAILS SPEEDER

Haste to Get Treatment for His Skin Proves Poor Plea in Court

Though R. B. McKinney, 6927 1/2 South Figueroa street, had such a case of sunburn he was confined to bed for five days, this proved no excuse for him driving thirty-five miles an hour across the intersection of Whittier and San Gabriel boulevards.

Presenting a certificate signed by Dr. Ed S. Ruth, reading "McKinney was badly sunburned at San Diego and was hastened home for treatment," the defendant yesterday appeared in court and was fined $15 by Judge Reed.

"It ought to be worth that much to get out of the sun in a hurry," the judge continued.

Soak a pickled veal tongue one hour and drain. Put in a kettle cover with cold water, and bring slowly to a boil, then remove to a slow fire to simmer slowly until tender, adding two cloves inserted in an onion, one-quarter of a bay leaf, some sprigs of parsley, and a sprig of thyme. When done, lift out the tongue with a skimmer and immerse in cold water. Remove skin and root. Return the tongue to its own hot liquor, and reserve until serving time.

CHOCOLATE JELLY
Boil one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of water, and two ounces of grated chocolate. Stir bottom of pan with a wooden spoon until the chocolate is thoroughly melted. Remove from the fire, dissolve in one and one-quarter tablespoonfuls of gelatin soaked twenty minutes in one-third of a cup of water. Stir, and let stand five minutes. Stirring, add one cupful of cold water and a teaspoonful of vanilla, and strain into a wet mold. Chill until set.

BROILED STEAK A LA BERCEY
Chop fine a tablespoonful of parsley, a tender shallot and a slice of garlic. Rub one ounce of butter until creamy. LETTUCE SALAD AND EGG DRESSING
Separate whites and yolks of three hard-boiled eggs; finely chop, separately, the whites and yolks. ## The LAST WORD

By ALMA WHITAKER

CORALIE

Coralie has just left for Paris. She drove half across the continent alone in her little roadster to New York. She expects to return bringing with her ideas and worth at least $15 a day.

When I first met Coralie about four years ago, she was a by-the-day dressmaker in a small town of 1000 inhabitants. She charged $9 a day and was getting all the work she could do. I was visiting there and needed a little work done, and she was amazed to find her so competent. She told me she was quite alone in the world, that she had been raised in a little middle-western town by a stepfather, and her mother having died when she was 12. Her father died ten years later. Coralie said she was ashamed to confess that she never even got through grammar school, but she had always loved sewing, so when she was left alone at 22, she aspired to start a dressmaking establishment of her own. Before that she had done alterations for the little local dry-goods store. She started in by charging $9 a day, soon had all the work she could do and raised her price to $25.00. But people were poor in that town and $25 seemed about their limit.

So Coralie went West, but still to a small town—although the city was then 45, then 46 a day. In the meantime she had taught half the women in the town to sew. She made them keep her all the work she had, and she had taught half the women in the town to sew. She made them keep her all the work she had, and she had taught half the women in the town to sew. She made them keep her all the work she had, and she had taught half the women in the town to sew.

When Coralie returns from Paris, I expect to see her branch out into a first class establishment of her own very soon. She has written to tell me that she was well versed in every detail of her trade. She has raised day-dressmaking to a profession, and many hosts of friends along the way. And this Coralie won't be 28 until next January.

Safety First

The first rule, if keeping "That Schoolgirl Complexion" is your aim

By NORMA SHEARER

The simple rules of nature are the ones to employ, if keeping a charming skin is your ambition. Do not gamble with your complexion on untried ways when Youth's rule is so simple, so economical.

Today beauty authorities urge a simple beauty treatment—soap and water for the face. But not just any soap, a true complexion soap—Palmolive. And regularly each night at bedtime as described.

Millions have kept schoolgirl complexion as the despair of foreign beauties. This rule is their habit. Wash the face gently with Palmolive. Massage its balmy olive and palm oil lather into the skin. Rinse with warm water; then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be naturally dry, apply a little good cream. That is all—it's nature's rule for keeping that schoolgirl complexion.

Use this way regularly, and particularly before bed. Note how much better your skin in one week. Use powder and make-up all you wish. But never leave out your overnight.

GET REAL PALMOLIVE
Costs but 10c a cake. Use no other on your face. But be sure you get GENUINE Palmolive. Crude imitations, represented to be of olive and palm oils, are not the same as Palmolive. Remember that and TAKE CARE. The Palmolive-Feet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

"Times" Daily Short Story

"THAT GAY YOUNG SET" CHAINS

By LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

NOTE: This is one of a series of short stories, each complete in itself, in which is related the ancient war between the youngsters and the elders of an old-fashioned town.

"I WAS Nina Herndon who told Babe Miles the story of R. F.
Barrett's life.
"That somebody told me he had a very good war record—that he quite distinguished himself in France."
"Oh, huh," Nina waved dismissive-ly. "He did. And then he got shot and killed. And that left him not caring whether he was going or coming. He had a couple of rooms over at the Yacht Club, and as old raw he sails around in. He plays golf—perfectly cocking golf, the men say, and just wonders around the way you see him."
"Well," Babe wailed indignantly,
"why doesn't somebody give him a good shaking? Doesn't he know the war is all over?"
"Babe Miles!" squealed Nina. "aren't you hard?"
"I am not!" Babe retorted. "But it makes me tired to see anybody as silly as he is going to look like that."
"I suppose," Nina mused, "it's not just the war. It's partly Editha."
"Who is Editha?"
"Well, she's a sort of a cousin of the Washingtons. Awfully highbrow, and all that. She's doing some kind of social service work in Boston. She's awfully old. Thirty-three, if she's a minute, but she's not at all bad-looking and she was kind of cutting in her war uniform. She did a lot of war work, here and in

Nina stared at the scrap of paper,
quite fascinated.
"And underneath you could write,
'If you do not make three copies of this and mail them within three days,
bad luck will pursue you and yours.'
Oh, Babe! What a perfectly corking idea!"
"Ninny! Ninny! Ninny!" said Babe.
"No wonder we called you that at school! You don't think I really mean it?" She crumpled up the bit of paper and dropped it in her waste-basket.
"Run along. Don't you know I'm busy making?"
"And you wouldn't have to sign your name to them at all," Nina mused. "Just sign it, 'a friend and well-wisher.'"
Miss Editha, in her elaborate quarters in an old Back Bay boarding-house, found the first one on a rainy night when she came back from lecturing in a little old church at Sud-bury. She frowned at it. A joke, said in very bad taste she thought it.
Only it wasn't a joke. Take out your pencil and reckon it out for yourself! Three times nine is three.
Three times three is nine. And each time you add the product to the sum that went before. Three times nine is twenty-seven, plus the original sum,
and then it's thirty-nine times three,
plus the number you began with. At the end of a week, Editha began to

"Gadadooks! The number already out don't bear thinking on!" chuckled Philander. "Shades of Arithmetic Progression, or whatever it is you reckon it out by, Editha must be getting some jolts!"
He put it in his pocket, and he laughed all the way to the club. But he looked sober enough when he handled the crumpled sheet to R. F.
"Seen any of those?" he asked.
"R. F." read it through and went white under his sunburn. Then he looked at Philander and roared.
"How dare you?"
"How dare I?" stammered Philander. "It's not mine. I—er—just found it—in a waste-basket—and the
—er—author—who wrote it—said that
—everybody was—er—"
"How dared they?"
"Sheer superstition, of course," Philander explained. "It's that bad luck stuff that scares 'em."
R. F. seemed to go perfectly crazy.
He strode out of the locker-room, roaring like an angry bull. He called high heaven to witness that an angel like Editha deserved better of her friends, and he vowed vengeance on whosoever was responsible. He strode out, shaking like a leaf, and when Philander last saw him, he was scrambling into the rickety roadster.
Which took him as far as Stamford before it broke down. There he caught the Boston train. He reached Bos-

"How dare I?" stammered Philander. "It's not mine. I—er—just found it—in a waste-basket—and the—er lady —who wrote it—said that—er—everybody was—er—"

France, and they say she reconstructed a whole village all by herself, raised the money for it, and everything. And even before that she was frightfully efficient. She used to get up more chains than anybody in Clairmont."
"Chains?" echoed Babe. "Nina, what are you talking about? You're crazy."
"I'm not. It's the truth. You must know what I mean. Sick chains and sweater chains and chocolate chains.
That sort of thing. You write three letters to three friends, and each person that gets a letter writes three,
and everybody that gets a letter sends a sweater, or a pair of socks, or whatever the chain is for, to an address that's given."
"I think R. F. needed somebody like Editha to poke him along. You see,
it was this way. When he came back,
all shell-shocked and everything, he insisted he wouldn't be engaged to her until he was better, and so they just drifted apart, and it does seem so sad and—"
"Nina," Babe mocked her sentimental friend. "Go away. You are breaking my heart. I think shall start a chain myself, begging Editha to come back and save her poor little boy. Something like this. Her busy pencil scribbled:
"Dear Editha—
"What is life without love? What is philanthropy compared to a husband? Perks the glittering generalities of your public work and come back to the man who risked his life
to save our Country."

wonder whether she could appeal to the postal authorities for help.
Her landlady was beginning to ask embarrassing questions, and the postman looked simply murderous. She began to be sure that she was in the midst of some incredible nightmare, but she simply couldn't wake herself up. By the third week, the mails were bringing her hundreds of
the terrible things.
And all this time, in complete ignorance of the cruel hoax, dear, moody, dreamy R. F. was cruising about the Sound in his old yawl, one day very much like another, and none of them worth counting. He finally put in one morning at his home dock to stock his larder. It was a decent sort of day, and he decided that a round of golf wouldn't be so bad. He phoned to his old pal, Philander, and tumbled into his rickety roadster to mill slowly along toward the Golf Club.
Philander was delayed. He really had quite a time getting away from home.
At this point, Philander kicked over the waste-basket. Accidentally, of course! And the fool thing rolled over,
and out tumbled a blotted bit of paper. His sister-in-law, Eunice, who was the most superstitious spinster in Clairmont, had made her copies of the chain that very morning.
Philander read, Philander whooped.
Philander observed that the number on the top was eighteen and that whoever started the chain had said:
"Do not stop this chain until number thirty-three."

ton at such an unlikely hour that he paced the streets until breakfast time. Then he appeared, wild-eyed,
at Editha's boarding-house.
It took him several moments to convince the cautious landlady that he should see her now almost hysterical lodger.
"Editha!" he burst into the lettercluttered sitting-room. "I saw one of those things—yesterday—I came—I oh, my poor, poor, Editha! How dared they?"
Suddenly, just to see him before her, brought Editha to her senses.
The really was rather a dear, and had the gift of laughter. Only, once she started laughing, she couldn't stop.
She just laughed till the tears came,
and, when he saw her in tears, he took her in his arms.
"If—they'd only—er—stop!" she wailed.
"We'll stop them!" he growled savagely. "We'll get married, and that will stop them! And then I'll whenever started that fool thing and I'll—I'll—"
Editha didn't let him finish his threat. She just put her hand over her mouth and said, very softly:
"Darling R. F., be—er—careful what you say! If it hadn't been for the first letter, there wouldn't have been any reason for your coming and—
and—" she began laughing again, as she hid her face against his coat. "I think myself, whoever it was—I'd like to tell her thank you!"
"Why—why—so would I. God bless her!" murmured the startled R. F.

The eagerness of mothers to dis-

coming responsible for the latest vogue of child-study, asserts Eugenia Ramsey Richardson in Scribner's Magazine.
In an essay called "A Little Learn-

"In my city the agitation for child-study began to shape itself into something concrete about three years ago when a great pediatrician gave a course on the proper feeding of chil-

Engineers Here for Convention

A delegation of mid-western engineers arrived in Los Angeles yesterday, headed by P. W. Raven of Chicago, secretary of the National Association of Stationary Engineers, for the forty-fifth annual convention of that organization which will be held next week at the Ambassador Theater.
Mr. Raven will have a series of conferences today with the executive

arrangements for the convention and the Pacific Coast Power and Mechanical Exhibit which will be held at the same time in the Ambassador Auditorium.
Nearly all the exhibits have been set up in the auditorium. Chairman Fischer said, including some of the world's largest power machinery. The Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light is setting up a panoramic representation of the proposed Boulder Canyon Dam development.

Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils and allow it to stand for 4 or 5 minutes to infuse. Fill each glass with cracked ice, add a slice of lemon, and pour in the tea—Add sugar to taste.

HULA IS JUST LIKE DYNAMITE

Clara Bow Gets Her Man in Film Story—But With Difficulty

BY MARQUIS BUSBY

Clara Bow is a nice little lady to have around the family in "Hula," which opened at the Metropolitan yesterday.

When her lover refuses to kiss her while she is wearing an elaborate evening dress for fear of "mussing" her, she proceeds to take it off.

And when she believes she is not going to get to marry her engineer lover she dynamites the dam on which he is working.

Such a sweet child—just full of pranks, like riding horseback into the dining room, and showing an entirely strange young man a bruise above her knee.

"Hula" explains itself in the title. The locale is a Hawaiian plantation, owned by "Old Bill" Calhoun, who spends his days eating pop, a very unappealing looking native conception, and drinking highballs. Hula is his daughter, who, like Topsy, just grew. Hula falls in love with a young British engineer who wears his clothes immaculately and has a dimple in his chin. The British doesn't object to her rather precipitous advances but half-way through the picture happens to recall that he has a wife in jolly old England. He asks for a divorce. The cold and haughty English wife arrives on the scene and when she discovers that hubby is in a fair way to become wealthy through his engineering work she declines to be set aside. Then Hula dynamites the dam, the wife consents to a divorce, and Hula, like the Northwest Mounted, gets her man.

Their married life should be interesting.

"Hula" was written from somebody's novel and if the book is as bad as the film it must have been terrible.

The picture starts quite entertainingly, Clara Bow as Hula, swimming about as natural in one of those shady pools which, according to movie geography, abound in the tropics. A bee stings Hula, and the swim is over. So is the picture.

Clara Bow is lovely, of course—a prettier girl never wore a shredded wheat skirt. Her own vivid personality has been blanketed, however, in too much cuteness.

Clive Brook is a nice dignified engineer hero, and seemed quite naturally distressed at finding himself in such a plot. Patricia Dupont, you remember Miss Dupont, is the English wife. The picture is not so attractive as the "catty" Mrs.

Lon Chaney To Visit Loew's

The management of Loew's State announces with considerable elation that Lon Chaney will be present in person tonight at 7 and 9 o'clock to "usher in" West Coast Greater Movie Season. This will be the first time he has planned to attend a show and told the world at large about it before-hand.

The management denies a rumor that Chaney will make his appearance on the proscenium arch as a giant tarantula.

Bane and Arnold Kent is the young rounder who desires Hula. Albert Gran as "Old Bill" Calhoun, sire of the volcanic Hula, is most delightful, being in an agreeable state of alcoholic ossification throughout.

"Hula" was directed by Victor Fleming for Paramount. Fleming has directed some very good pictures recently but this isn't one of them.

If "Hula" will not cause any bonfire to be built on the hilltops, the Fanchon and Marco idea, "The Parisian Idea," is beautifully staged and never fails to entertain. It is an optical feast for the color blending in the costumes and settings is exquisite. The twenty-four pyramid girls illustrate the change in the style of women's wearing since the days of Mother Eve (Eve was respectfully if scantily clothed). Rube Wolf conducts long enough to sing a bit, and the orchestra features a pot-pourri of the song hits of 1926. There are two girls who dance well, and an exceedingly graceful adagio team, neither number being programmed.

SCREECHES AROUND IN MYSTERY DRAMA

With all its shivers and screeches and general air of skullduggery, this melodramatic stand-by, "The Thirteenth Chair," was staged last evening by the Martha Ostrum players in their new and attractive little theater at 1510 South Figueroa street. It will be repeated this evening.

The Ostrum players do a corking good job with the play, maintaining the suspense and keeping the audience interest at a high pitch, which is, after all, the main reason for an offering of this type. The performance moves smoothly and at a reasonably fast tempo. The players, usually with the exception of the school, filled their roles to satisfaction.

Alhambra Will Reopen Doors

The West Coast Alhambra Theater which for the last two weeks has been closed for complete renovation, will open again today with Norma Shearer in "After Midnight."

The West Coast Theatres, Inc. in accordance with its policy of giving its patrons the best of entertainment in comfortable surroundings, has spared no expense in its effort to make the Alhambra "the last word in theater achievement."

New and commodious loges, leather upholstered opera chairs, up-to-date ventilation and a novel lighting system together with other improvements, will make personal appearances this evening. It is said, Billy Hanner, composer and one of Los Angeles' popular singers, will officiate as master of ceremonies.

Morosco Actor to be Honored

Harry Garrity, one of the best-known players in the Morosco company and one of the oldest in years of playing, will be publicly honored by a reception back-stage following the performance of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," Saturday afternoon.

Garrity has been on the stage for many years. He came to the Morosco six years ago and became known as the creator of the Irish father role in "The Irish Rose," when that perennial success was born at the Los Angeles theater. He went to New York with the comedy, and after playing there for a few years came back to the Morosco, where public favor has kept him ever since.

Reinhardt to Produce Here

Word was received yesterday from Joseph M. Schenck, guiding hand of United Artists, that Max Reinhardt has at last succumbed to the lure of the movies. Schenck signed a contract with Reinhardt to direct one picture for United Artists, to be produced during the coming winter. Mr. Reinhardt will arrive in America some time before December and will probably remain in Hollywood for six months.

Max Reinhardt is well known in this country for his production of "The Miracle," which previously was the sensation of Europe.

COOK GOES THROUGH THRESHING MACHINE

Clyde Cook, the motion-picture comedian, now playing the role of a circus acrobat interned in a German prison camp in Pola Negri's new starring vehicle for Paramount, "Ratched Wire," which is showing at the Rialto, was called upon to take his life in his hands as he followed a sheaf of wheat through the machine.

Getting into it was an easy matter and he came out at the straw delivery end without trouble. It was what happened between those two points that made it a bit difficult.

Goossens Leads Piece Dedicated to Mrs. Carter; English Bach Excels

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Goossens's second symphony night at the Bowl was distinguished by the Brahms Fourth and enlivened by Howard Hanson's new work, "Pan and the Priest," dedicated to Artie Mason Carter. A Bach suite arranged by the conductor was especially well done both as to composition and performance and a suite, "Capricci," by Warlock, was a captivating bit of Anglicized French charm.

One is convinced after hearing Eugene Goossens and Sir Henry Wood conduct Bach, that it takes the English to perform this master.

Goossens's Brahms leaves more to be desired. The second and third movements beautifully sung by the instruments and the great orchestra sounded like a celestial organ. Nuance and subtle shading created rarely beautiful moments and one felt that the young English conductor loves his Brahms even though his experience is not quite enough to make him the ideal interpreter of the Brahms message.

Hanson's new work is good and bad. Some of his "inner conflicts" are painful dissonances which he had better have kept hidden with the family skeleton. Delightful rhythmic effects aided by Claire Mellon-Ino at the piano typified the innate Americanism of the composer and the melodic content is original, dignified and splendidly worth-while. Needless to add when speaking of Hanson's work, it is well written, is interesting and sincere, but at the same time some of its modernism is fearfully untamed.

The "Capricci" suite of French transcriptions is not the usual group of "dérangements," but they communicate to the listener the liveliness and dainty delicacies of ancient pavanettes, plects-en-lair et basse-danse. Chabrier's contagious "Españole" sent the Bowl fans home with the bit of the fandango in their steps.

Tonight Elsa Alsen, Wagnerian singer of note, will appear. Goossens is to conduct the rarely heard Beethoven overture to Leonore No. 1 and Excerpts from "Le Coq d'Or."

Frank Lloyd Quits United Artists Star

For reasons not definite, Frank Lloyd, recently announced as the director of John Barrymore's next picture for United Artists, will not handle the megaphone on that production.

This was stated yesterday when studio officials admitted that Lloyd had left the lot to take a disagreement over the script of the picture. Studio officials denied that any serious trouble had arisen and stated Lloyd's resignation was by mutual consent and was given after deliberation.

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Goossens's second symphony night at the Bowl was distinguished by the Brahms Fourth and enlivened by Howard Hanson's new work, "Pan and the Priest," dedicated to Artie Mason Carter. A Bach suite arranged by the conductor was especially well done both as to composition and performance and a suite, "Capricci," by Warlock, was a captivating bit of Anglicized French charm.

One is convinced after hearing Eugene Goossens and Sir Henry Wood conduct Bach, that it takes the English to perform this master.

Goossens's Brahms leaves more to be desired. The second and third movements beautifully sung by the instruments and the great orchestra sounded like a celestial organ. Nuance and subtle shading created rarely beautiful moments and one felt that the young English conductor loves his Brahms even though his experience is not quite enough to make him the ideal interpreter of the Brahms message.

Hanson's new work is good and bad. Some of his "inner conflicts" are painful dissonances which he had better have kept hidden with the family skeleton. Delightful rhythmic effects aided by Claire Mellon-Ino at the piano typified the innate Americanism of the composer and the melodic content is original, dignified and splendidly worth-while. Needless to add when speaking of Hanson's work, it is well written, is interesting and sincere, but at the same time some of its modernism is fearfully untamed.

The "Capricci" suite of French transcriptions is not the usual group of "dérangements," but they communicate to the listener the liveliness and dainty delicacies of ancient pavanettes, plects-en-lair et basse-danse. Chabrier's contagious "Españole" sent the Bowl fans home with the bit of the fandango in their steps.

Tonight Elsa Alsen, Wagnerian singer of note, will appear. Goossens is to conduct the rarely heard Beethoven overture to Leonore No. 1 and Excerpts from "Le Coq d'Or."

Frank Lloyd Quits United Artists Star

For reasons not definite, Frank Lloyd, recently announced as the director of John Barrymore's next picture for United Artists, will not handle the megaphone on that production.

This was stated yesterday when studio officials admitted that Lloyd had left the lot to take a disagreement over the script of the picture. Studio officials denied that any serious trouble had arisen and stated Lloyd's resignation was by mutual consent and was given after deliberation.

Alhambra Will Reopen Doors

The West Coast Alhambra Theater which for the last two weeks has been closed for complete renovation, will open again today with Norma Shearer in "After Midnight."

The West Coast Theatres, Inc. in accordance with its policy of giving its patrons the best of entertainment in comfortable surroundings, has spared no expense in its effort to make the Alhambra "the last word in theater achievement."

New and commodious loges, leather upholstered opera chairs, up-to-date ventilation and a novel lighting system together with other improvements, will make personal appearances this evening. It is said, Billy Hanner, composer and one of Los Angeles' popular singers, will officiate as master of ceremonies.

Morosco Actor to be Honored

Harry Garrity, one of the best-known players in the Morosco company and one of the oldest in years of playing, will be publicly honored by a reception back-stage following the performance of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," Saturday afternoon.

Garrity has been on the stage for many years. He came to the Morosco six years ago and became known as the creator of the Irish father role in "The Irish Rose," when that perennial success was born at the Los Angeles theater. He went to New York with the comedy, and after playing there for a few years came back to the Morosco, where public favor has kept him ever since.

Reinhardt to Produce Here

Word was received yesterday from Joseph M. Schenck, guiding hand of United Artists, that Max Reinhardt has at last succumbed to the lure of the movies. Schenck signed a contract with Reinhardt to direct one picture for United Artists, to be produced during the coming winter. Mr. Reinhardt will arrive in America some time before December and will probably remain in Hollywood for six months.

Max Reinhardt is well known in this country for his production of "The Miracle," which previously was the sensation of Europe.

COOK GOES THROUGH THRESHING MACHINE

Clyde Cook, the motion-picture comedian, now playing the role of a circus acrobat interned in a German prison camp in Pola Negri's new starring vehicle for Paramount, "Ratched Wire," which is showing at the Rialto, was called upon to take his life in his hands as he followed a sheaf of wheat through the machine.

Getting into it was an easy matter and he came out at the straw delivery end without trouble. It was what happened between those two points that made it a bit difficult.
